[Visited Feb'11] London Low Life is a digital collection of fiction, cartoons, maps, posters, ballads, advertisements, broadsides, and reform literature relevant to the social history of London from 1800 to 1910. The core of this online resource is derived from the Michael Sadleir Collection of London Low Life, the Chapbook Collection, the Pforzheimer Collection of George Gissing's manuscripts, and the Virginia Warren Collection of Street Cries, all held in the Lilly Library of Indiana University. Users may search for content by author, title, and keyword while restricting the scope of searches to particular collections and/or document types. A useful feature is the ability to restrict results to primary documents only. Content may also be browsed by collection, document type, and theme, e.g., Leisure and Entertainment, or Sex, Prostitution and Obscenity. Primary documents are available for viewing both as facsimiles and transcribed full text, in a single interface. London Low Life provides documents that can be downloaded and printed in PDF format. It is fully compatible with EndNote (CH, Feb'08, 45-2929) and RefWorks. Interactive searchable maps include Historic Basemaps, Tallis Street Views, Thematic Data, and a detailed map of Victorian London that provides geographic references to primary documents held in the collection. The Tallis Street Views, in particular, enable users to take a look around Victorian London in a 3-D environment. Visual Resources includes individual images and online exhibitions with thematic collections such as Politics, Scandal and the News; and Women and Gender. Reference tools such as a Dictionary of Slang, Chronology, and Essays help contemporary users understand the historical context of primary documents. The My Archive feature adds convenience for individual users, offering a personal bookshelf for saving documents, images, and searches. London Low Life is well designed, easy to use, and rich in content. Summing Up: Recommended. Lower-level undergraduates through researchers/faculty; general audience. -- G. A. Stachokas, Indiana State University
